

Everyday Counts!

Students who regularly attend school, perform better socially, emotionally and academically. While it doesn't seem much to miss one to two days per fortnight, it can have a huge impact upon a students' learning. Research has proven that low school attendance affects academic results (Uni. of Western Australia, 2013).

One to two days per fortnight doesn't mean much...
Student misses...	That equals...	Which is...	After 13 years of schooling...
One day per fortnight	20 days per year	Four weeks per year	Nearly one and a half years missed
One day per week	40 days per year	Eight weeks per year	Over two and a half years missed
Two days per week	80 days per year	16 weeks per year	Over five years missed
